Change of Helpline number

The BWA Helpline provides information to professionals and acts as the first point of contact for survivors to access advice and information about domestic abuse, or self-refer to one of our services.

From 6th December 2021 the BWA Helpline number will be changing. Our new number is free to call from UK mobiles and landlines and does not appear on itemised bills.

To ensure continuity of service, our previous Helpline number will continue to connect for the first month. After this time an automated message will redirect people to our new number.
